Circulated to 108,000 homes and businesses by Hackney Council

Issue 404 12 June 2017

BOURNE REBORN

THE first Hackney school to be built in the Queen Elizabeth Olympic Park – Mossbourne Riverside Academy – has celebrated its official opening.

The primary school is part of East Wick, one of five new communities created in the park. It is next to Here East – a hub for creative and technology industries – and looks over the River Lee Navigation.

Staff and pupils joined the Mayor of Hackney, Philip Glanville; Deputy Mayor, Anntoinette Bramble; and representatives from the London Legacy Development Corporation to officially open the academy on 5 June.

Pupils have access to world class facilities including the London Aquatics Centre and Lee Valley Hockey and Tennis Centre. The academy, in East Bay Lane, has reception and key stage 1 classes, but plans to become a three form entry primary school.

It is currently accepting expressions of interest for its new nursery, due to open next September.

The Mayor said: "It's great to see another key part of the 2012 legacy come to fruition, and it was lovely to visit the school again for its official opening. Securing real benefits for local people was a crucial part of the 2012 Games for Hackney, so to see this amazing purpose built, state-of-the-art school open right here in the Queen Elizabeth Olympic Park is a very special moment."

Principal Amy Wood added: "Our academy shows every child that we hold teaching and learning with the highest regard, we understand pupils only have one chance at primary education, and we will ensure that it is the best."

Market makeover

A revamped Hoxton Market is set for a summertime relaunch and will feature music and entertainment from Hoxton Radio DJs

HOXTON Street Market is planning a summertime relaunch.

Packed with East End spirit, and just a short stroll from Shoreditch, the market has recently been transformed and now boasts new-look market stalls.

Established in 1687, Hoxton is the oldest street market in Hackney, and it is hoped the relaunch on Saturday, 24 June will build on the success of the market's 330 year history.

The aim of the event is to highlight the importance of building a strong local community and economy, as well as showcasing the market traders, their products and local retail offer.

> "Keeping the special character of our street markets is key in attracting residents and visitors alike"

Entertainment at the free event will be provided by a line-up of Hoxton Radio DJs.

The Hoxton Trust will also be opening its community garden, providing the perfect location for relaxing and socialising, while Hoxton Hall is offering guided tours of its historic building, and mini performances from a variety of artists.

David Preshaah, from Hoxton Radio, said: "We have been long supporters of Hoxton Street Market and the diverse range of traders, stalls, cool bars and restaurants and local ambiance of the street.

"We're excited to be broadcasting live from Hoxton Street Market, bringing together local voices and faces with an exciting soundtrack of wonders."

Cllr Guy Nicholson, Cabinet Member for Planning, Business and Investment, added: "The borough's markets are always on the lookout for new ideas and products so do get in touch if you think that your business could thrive and grow in one of our markets. Keeping the special local character of our street markets is key in attracting residents and visitors alike, and Hoxton Street Market is no exception.

"So a big thank you to Hoxton's local businesses, Hoxton Radio, Hoxton Hall and Hoxton Trust for helping to make sure Hoxton Street Market is on the map for the next 330 years."

Dalston Children's Festival drew to a close with its first ever pasta festival featuring food, music and lots of fun activities

It's first pasta post

MORE than 2,300 residents got involved with the Dalston Children's Festival this year, as 19 local organisations delivered events from slime-making to French cinema, keeping children entertained over the half term break.

The festival ended in style with a Pasta Festival and free play event on 3 June. Band Off The Wall and Stanza de Tre played for visitors as they tucked into free pasta created by Chef Toppi, who had flown in from Italy especially for the event.

Children were kept occupied with international board games, hula hooping, dancing and a makeshift playground.

The Dalston Children's Festival aims to highlight the fun to be had in Dalston all year-round, whilst promoting the creative organisations and community groups that operate in the area.

Claire Lindsay from Hackney Playbus, one of the host organisations, said: "We loved the atmosphere, the range of activities available, the beautiful aesthetic of the entire festival, the feeling of inclusivity: it was a joy to be part of it all."

The Dalston Children's Festival is a community-led event and was organised by the Dalston Children's Network, a collective of organisations that have an on-going offer for children and young people in Dalston, and is supported by the Council.

Election results: MPs retain seats

Diane Abbott thanked supporters

HACKNEY's two MPs were re-elected with increased majorities, in the General Election on 8 June.

In a 66.9 per cent turn out ,Diane Abbott received 42,265 votes (75 per cent) to hold the Hackney North and Stoke Newington seat for Labour.

While Meg Hillier received 43,974 votes (79 per cent) to win the Hackney South and Shoreditch seat on a 66.4 per cent turn out.

After the Hackney North result was announced, Ms Abbott said: "In Hackney the people have supported our campaign, which was a positive campaign addressing the issues that concern people, whether it's the state of our NHS, whether it's the housing crisis, whether it's benefit cuts. We fought a positive campaign here in Hackney and we have been vindicated."

Ms Hillier tweeted: "Thank you. I will continue to fight for #Hackney, for those who have no voice and for our children's future."

The full results were:

Hackney North and Stoke Newington: Diane Abbott (Labour) 42,265; Amy Gray (Conservative) 7,126; Joe Richards (Liberal Democrat) 3,817; Alastair Binnie-Lubbock (Green) 2,606; Jon Homan (Animal Welfare Party) 222; Abraham Spielmann (Independent) 203; Coraline Aisha Corlis-Khan (Friend's Party) 59.

Hackney South and Shoreditch: Meg Hillier (Labour & Co-operative) 43,974; Luke Parker (Conservative) 6,043; Dave Ravel (Liberal Democrats) 3,168; Rebecca Johnson (Green) 1,522; Vanessa Hudson (Animal Welfare Party) 226; Russell Higgs (Independent) 143; Angel Watt (Christian Peoples Alliance) 113; Jonty Leff (Workers Revolutionary Party) 86; Hugo Michael Sugg (Independent) 50; Dale Shaka Kalamazad (Independent) 29.

Get ready for a festival of amazing LGBTQI+ events

It's going to be...

HACKNEY PRIDE 365

Images from a VFDalston event; The Glory's Lipsync 1000 competition final with judges Grace Dent and Graham Norton, the Pride In London parade, LGBT History Month launch

THE rainbow flag will fly for the first time ever over Hackney Town Hall next month as the Council launches the Hackney Pride 365 festival to celebrate the borough's LGBTQI+ community.

The festival will run all year round, with community-led events that include everything from a gardening club to club nights at some of Hackney's best-loved venues and outdoor spaces. Expect a summer gala, family picnic, fashion show, film screenings and history walks, with more grassroots events to be announced.

Mayor of Hackney, Philip Glanville, said: "Hackney is a creative, radical, and most of all diverse place with a history of tolerance that has fostered community cohesion where people from all walks of life, of different genders, sexualities and backgrounds can come together. The Hackney Pride 365 festival aims to celebrate that tolerance and diversity every single day of the year, remembering past, often hard-won victories, as well as celebrating the range of communities who live in our borough today."

Hackney will also take part in the Pride in London parade on 8 July, with 150 people representing the borough.

Hackney Pride 365 aims to inspire new collaborations in future years: events programmed so far were developed from more than 100 suggestions submitted by residents and activists who attended a launch event for LGBT History Month in February.

Greener Hackney

VolkerHighways

Berkeley
Designed for life

Hackney is one of the most diverse places in the UK. In this regular feature, we profile the borough's great & good or just plain interesting

Priority is the young

AS Soraya Adejare begins her one-year post as the new Speaker of Hackney, the Dalston ward councillor and mother-of-one's first priority is the borough's young people.

Her main objective is to use her new role to empower disadvantaged groups, especially young people who hold a special place in her heart.

While still at sixth form, she worked for Hackney Early Years, a charity that provided a broad range of educational services to schools in the borough.

The Speaker describes her time there as rewarding and valuable. She adds: "You see so many different things undertaking that kind of work; you see fairly affluent families, to the most deprived, and it just brings you a different level of understanding of wider society."

The Speaker's belief in young people also stems from her time working with various youth programmes, which taught her the importance of investing in young people and the difference one person can make.

She says: "Just being able to impart a small degree of knowledge to them, allows them to set targets for themselves to reach."

The Speaker also hopes to raise the profile of community groups and local businesses that operate within the borough during her time in office.

It is important for her to be able to engage with these groups of people in order to make them feel like the work they do is significant.

She says: "They may not be in the news all the time, but we want people to know that we as councillors appreciate the work they do."

As someone who was born in Glasgow, but raised in Woodberry Down estate, the Speaker feels it is vital that residents see the people that represent them.

This was one of the reasons for her initially becoming a councillor.

She says: "There is no culture or social group that's alien to me, and no part of Hackney that is unknown to me.

"Although there have been a lot of changes going on, it's a place that I value highly and I am proud to be a part of."

Becoming a mother has further inspired the Speaker to do more for Hackney's young people, and she regularly attends Council meetings with her three-year-old daughter, Nafeesah.

In her spare time, the Speaker also volunteers for the homelessness charity Crisis, and is a Governor at Tyssen Primary School, in N16.

Her aim to raise the awareness of disadvantaged groups has certainly influenced the choice of charities that she will be supporting during her term as Speaker.

She has decided on three charities which focus on providing a nurturing environment for young people to grow up in.

They are: Skyway, which undertakes youth work in a variety of settings; Off Centre, which provides counselling, therapy, advocacy, advice and psychosocial services for young people in Hackney; and The Access to Sports Project, a community-led, creative and innovative sports development charity project.

A new Speaker is elected every May at the Council's Annual General Meeting by fellow councillors.

Cllr Adejare will be supported this year by the Deputy Speaker, Cllr Clare Potter.

It is hoped closing a road by St John the Baptist Primary School will increase safety and lower pollution

Streets ahead

A PILOT scheme to cut pollution and make it safer and easier for children to walk and cycle to school is due to start this month.

The road outside St John the Baptist Primary School, in Hoxton, is set to close to traffic in the mornings and afternoons from 26 June.

Crondall Street will be a pedestrian and cyclist only zone from 8.30am to 9.15am and 3.15pm to 4pm during term time.

The scheme was supported by the majority of parents and residents who responded to a recent public consultation.

People who live on the street will still be able to drive down the street if their vehicle is registered with the Council. To do so, e-mail: streetscene@hackney.gov.uk

Non-registered vehicles entering the street during the scheme operation hours will be identified by camera and issued a fixed penalty notice.

Cllr Feryal Demirci, Cabinet Member for Neighbourhoods, Transport and Parks, said: "I'm delighted that the majority of parents and residents agree with our proposal to close Crondall Street during school pick up and drop off times.

"The vast majority of children in Hackney walk or cycle to school, but too many children still make the journey by car.

"Driving children to school is bad for air quality and bad for children's health. I hope Crondall Street will be the first of many School Streets in the borough.

"It's just one of the things we're doing to try to make it safer and easier for children to walk and cycle to school."

> "Driving children to school is bad for air quality and bad for children's health"

As part of the scheme, the Council will be collecting data on how parents and pupils travel to school and taking air quality readings.

A second School Street scheme will be piloted in Oldhill Street, Stamford Hill, outside Tyssen Community School.

Parents and residents will be consulted on these plans over the summer, with road closures planned from September.

When the Council has evaluated the success of both pilots, it will decide whether to roll out the scheme to other schools in the borough, although not all will be suitable for it.

Course serves up vegan treats

RESIDENTS have been full of praise for a 'Cooking For Life' course run by Made In Hackney earlier this month. Funded by City Bridge Trust, charity Vegetarian for Life (which is dedicated to improving the quality of life for older vegetarians and vegans) and Hackney Circle, it aims to help participants improve their cooking skills and learn how to cook quick, tasty dishes from different cultures in a healthier way.

Hackney Circle member, Phebean Oriogun, said: "It's more exciting learning in the company of others. Pea and lavender soup and apple crumble have been my favourites so far."

To find out when classes are on, how to volunteer, or to make a donation, visit: www.madeinhackney.org

Take a brisk 'active 10' walk

RESIDENTS can now use a free app to help them get more active and improve their health.

Developed by Public Health England, the Active 10 app shows how much brisk walking a person is doing and how to do more. It's easy to use and helps set goals for the day.

A 10-minute walk every day can make a major difference to people's health. This burst of exercise is simply walking faster than usual at a pace that gets the heart pumping.

Regular physical activity can help people with lower back pain and those at risk of high blood pressure.

It can also do wonders for long-term health, reducing the risk of serious illnesses like heart disease and type 2 diabetes.

To download the Active 10 app or to find out more about walking in Hackney visit: hackney.gov.uk/walking

Festival is guaranteed to put a spring in your step

A FUN day out for all the family is guaranteed at this year's Finsbury Park Festival of Cycling and Walking on Sunday, 18 June.

Residents can bring along friends and family to join in the cycling activities provided by Hackney, Haringey and Islington cyclist groups.

Activities throughout the day include free bike maintenance checks, security marking, second hand bike sales, competitions and giveaways.

Guests can also check out pop-up stalls from local shops offering delicious food, snacks and drinks.

Participants will learn about the history of the area, get up close with nature and see that there's more to Woodberry Down than they imagined.

Imaginative minds

CHILDREN say the most extraordinary things, but now tales dreamed up by local kids, are being turned into a series of picture books.

The imaginative works are the result of a collaboration between Penguin Random House UK and Hackney-based children's charity Ministry of Stories, which aims to help less advantaged children, aged eight to 18, realise their creative potential.

In fact, the authors of the 17 picture books are all under the age of 12.

At the charity's Hoxton headquarters, the children were encouraged to compose stories that their younger selves would have enjoyed, aided by writing mentors.

Each young author then worked closely with a professional illustrator, sketching out ideas in order to help bring them to life.

Maise Noble, one of the illustrators who volunteered her time, said: "Selin, the little girl I worked with, had heaps of energy and our meetings were really fun.

"The writing mentors and myself encouraged her to have control over all aspects of the book.

"Selin mentioned to me that when she told people that she was having a book printed, they didn't believe her. She couldn't wait to show them the finished thing."

The books include stories about two toucans who travel to England in search of jobs; a boy with magical football boots; and a child who wants to go to the moon, but is too small.

They will all be available to read online, via the Penguin Random House website.

Fifty sets of the books have also been printed and given to all those involved in the project, as well as to local schools and Shoreditch Library.

Melinda, nine, the author of 'Tecnoglo and the Special Element', said: "It feels amazing to have something published for real and it's really good that children might be reading my book as a bedtime story."

Help for young care leavers

A NEW website to help care leavers make informed decisions about education and work was launched by the Learning and Work Institute last month.

Supported by the Department for Education and Skills, the website aims to help young people who have left, or are in the process of leaving, the care system to think about the different learning, training and employment routes available to them, and find out what support they can receive along the way.

Nicola Aylward, Head of Learning for Young People at the Learning and Work Institute, said: "Many young people leaving care face serious disadvantage.

"Frequent moves, instability and lack of positive role models can prevent young people in care from developing skills that are important in their transition to adulthood, independent living and further education and work opportunities."

Teenagers needed to help shape theatre's path

A LEADING theatre is looking for teenagers to help mould its summer programme.

The Yard Theatre in Hackney Wick is launching two free projects in August for 15 to 19-year-olds. The first, called 'You, Me, The World and Hackney' will be produced in partnership with the theatre company Take Stock Exchange.

Storytellers and artists will help young collaborators draw out their own stories, listen to other people's and find new ways to bring strangers together.

For the second project, called 'The Committee', the theatre is looking for 10 teens to take the reigns for six weeks, deciding what issues and art-forms the Yard should tackle and why.

Jay Miller, the Yard's Artistic Director, said: "We want to provide a platform for them to tell us what they think theatre should be.

Both these projects are supported by the Council as part of the Discover Young Hackney youth arts festival.

Combustion

Until 24 June, Arcola Theatre, 24 Ashwin Street, Dalston, E8 3DL

IT is Ramadan in Bradford. Three local Muslim men have been arrested for grooming and abusing a 12-year-old girl. The English Defence League has organised a protest rally and a counter-demonstration is planned.

It doesn't sound like fertile territory for comedy. Yet somehow Bradford-born Asif Khan's debut play achieves the impossible.

▸ For more info, visit: www.arcolatheatre.com

The Telegraph described the play, one of six selected for the Arcola's PlayWROUGHT festival in 2014, as 'brave, important and necessary.

The Stage praised it for 'bringing clarity and humour to dark and difficult material'.

How does Khan pull it off? We don't want to spoilt it for you. Just go, immediately, and see this world premiere for yourself. Combustion is on until 24 June.

Tickets cost £17 with £14 concessions available. For more information and to book, visit: www.arcolatheatre.com

ART & EXHIBITIONS

TOM PHILLIPS: CONNECTED WORKS

Until 1 Jul, Tues-Sat, 10am-6pm

Throughout his career, artist Tom Phillips has woven together many diverse modes of practice, including painting, sculpture, text, music, photography, video, design, and site-specific sculptural installations. This retrospective exhibition, which coincides with the artist's 80th birthday, gathers together a selection of works produced across five decades. Free. All ages. Flowers Gallery, 82 Kingsland Road, Haggerston, E2 8DP. Info: 020 7920 7777; info@flowersgallery.com; www.flowersgallery.com/exhibitions/view/tom-phillips-1

YOU GET ME?

Until 1 Jul, various opening times

Mahtab Hussain's photographs explore the critical question of identity among young working class British Asian men. 'You Get Me?' addresses the contested political terrain of race and representation, respect and cultural difference. The 24 portraits in the exhibition, taken over a nine-year period in Birmingham, London and Nottingham, examine how the weight of masculinity impacts the subject's sense of self, as they navigate the complex identity formations historically placed upon them. Free. Rivington Place (off Rivington Street), Shoreditch, EC2A 3BA. Info: 020 7749 1240; info@autograph-abp.co.uk; www.autograph-abp.co.uk/exhibitions/you-get-me

MONIQUE FRYDMAN

Until 12 Aug, various opening times

The solo exhibition of abstract paintings by artist Monique Frydman is a vibrant embodiment of colour and light. Soft lines are produced through frottage – a technique in which the artist rubs pastel on to an unstretched canvas that has been placed over a tangle of cord or string. Only from the 1980s onwards did Frydman start to use intensely rich colours, especially deep dark reds and blues, in her work. By the latter part of that decade she was making works that have a subtle relationship to the works of artists she admired, such as Monet, Bonnard and Matisse. Free. All ages. Parasol Unit Foundation for Contemporary Art, 14 Wharf Road, Hoxton, N1 7RW. Info: 020 7490 7373; info@parasol-unit.org; www.parasol-unit.org/monique-frydman

Echoes of the Past

Mid-Jun to September, Hackney Museum, Technology and Learning Centre, 1 Reading Lane, E8 1GQ

LOCAL historian Amir Dotan has brought to life the grand houses, pubs, cinemas and shops that once dominated the scenery of Stoke Newington in a series of evocative 'mash-up' images.

Combining his passion for local history and knowledge of graphic design, Amir blends old photos and drawings with their present day urban settings from Google Street View. He has lived in Stoke Newington for the past 15 years and has sourced historical images from a wide variety of sources, including archives, books, social media and personal collections online.

This free exhibition will showcase 12 images from his collection of 200, with more being displayed as rolling video footage. Amir himself appears in a video to explain his work.

The images will be available to view at Hackney Museum from mid-June and over the summer. The work will then go on display at Hackney Archives in Dalston.

East London Film Festival

Until 2 July, various locations

THE East London Film Festival (EEFF) is back, and bolder than ever. This year, London's biggest alternative film festival stretches over five weekends, each with its own theme and cinematic treasure trove of screenings and shows.

Hackney remains at the heart of the festival, with venues from Clapton's Castle Cinema to Shoreditch's Electric via Dalston's Rio, all featuring films on everything from Tupac to Brexit, post-truth to poetry.

Things kicked off earlier this month with an 'outdoors' theme, and a celebration of the history and diversity of the East End. From 15 to 16 June, the festival champions 'the bravest and boldest new voices in cinema', while the weekend after, dubbed 'Submerge', is all about pushing the boundaries between cinema and other artforms.

Finally, the festival goes out with bang on 29 June to 2 July with a 'Headline' weekender, bringing 'the most vital new films' to audiences across East London, ahead of their theatrical release.

Recipes for success

A SOCIAL enterprise in Hackney that makes affordable healthy recipe kits for residents has just been launched.

Produced by Haggerston-based Make Kit, they contain everything needed to create a nutritious meal at home, including pre-measured ingredients and an easy-to-follow recipe.

Last year, the kits were piloted over a three-month period on Fellows Court Estate, E2.

Seimone, a local resident who uses the kits, said:

> "It's saved me a lot of time with the kids. All the ingredients are there for you instead of you going to the shops"

"It's saved me a lot of time with the kids. All the ingredients are there for you instead of you going to the shops."

A family Make Kit starts at £2.64 per person and can be ordered online for two or four people.

They can be delivered to the door or collected from a local pick-up point.

Make Kit was founded by chef Steve Wilson and businesswoman Justine Fish.

She said: "Meal kits are a new way of cooking at home and can help you eat healthier and save time and money.

"However, most recipe kits are out of budget for the average UK household.

"We wanted to create a recipe kit that was affordable and bring these benefits to more people."

Make Kit is supported by the Council's Healthier Hackney Fund, which provides funding and support to groups that are working to make Hackney healthier.

News in brief

A splashing day on the rapids

A GROUP from adult mental health charity Core Arts, in Hackney, took part in a 'Disability Day' at Lee Valley White Water Centre last month.

They joined more than 80 people from London, Hertfordshire and Essex in tackling the Waltham Cross venue's white water rapids in rafts, or sampled canoeing, kayaking and stand up paddle boarding on the lake. Some also had a chance to experience canoeing down the 300m-long Olympic course where Team GB won gold and silver at London 2012.

Laura Connolly, inclusive sports development manager at Core Arts, said: "Some of the group were a bit apprehensive at first, but they were all really pleased that they did it and had a great day."

For more information on Core Arts, visit: www.corearts.co.uk

Praise for Homerton services

HOMERTON'S community health services for both children and young people and adults have been rated as 'good' by the Care Quality Commission (CQC).

Apart from the overall good rating, the services also scored 'good' in the five main inspection categories of: safe; effective; caring; responsive; and well-led. The inspectors found all the community facilities they visited to be clean, tidy and clutter free, and staff were caring and friendly with all their patients and families.

Sheila Adam, the Trust's chief nurse and director of governance, said: "We are delighted that our services and sites came through this full and thorough inspection so well, and that the CQC values our work so highly."

Event offers guidance on men's health

FREE gym passes, fitness taster sessions and weight testing are just some of the things on offer at Men's Health Day in Dalston CLR James Library.

The day will show how easy it is to work in simple exercises as part of a daily routine, with a free low impact fitness class.

Those who attend the class will also be given a free gym taster session.

While health experts will be on hand to give drop-in health coaching and weight testing advice.

Obesity in men can lead to many different health complications including a higher risk of stroke, and a fivefold increase in the likelihood of developing type 2 diabetes.

As well as improving physical health, an active healthy lifestyle has also been shown to dramatically improve mental wellbeing.

Yasmin Glover, Shoreditch Trust's health coach manager, said: "This event is a great opportunity for men to learn more about the things that affect their health, and ways to overcome them."

Men's Health Day takes place on Thursday, 15 June from 4pm to 7.30pm. No booking is required.

The event is being held by the Council in partnership with Healthier Together Hackney and Shoreditch Trust. For more information, visit: www.hackney.gov.uk/libraries

The Mayor and councillors

Councillors are elected by residents and serve for four years. The last borough-wide elections took place in May 2014.

Councillors have a range of responsibilities, including helping to oversee Council services.

They hold advice surgeries where residents can meet their local representative and ask them to take up issues of concern. Generally they can help with Council related matters, but if the issue is the responsibility of another person or organisation, councillors can often point people in the right direction and tell residents who they need to see.

Hackney's executive Mayor Philip Glanville, was directly elected by the borough in September 2016. He is the political leader of the Council, overseeing the budget and all Council services. The Mayor holds monthly casework surgeries in the Town Hall. To book an appointment, email: mayor@hackney.gov.uk; or call: 020 8356 3269. Residents are first encouraged to contact their ward councillor. Civic and ceremonial duties are undertaken by the Speaker of Hackney who is chosen annually from the borough's 57 councillors. The current Speaker is Cllr Rosemary Sales.

A healthy eating programme from Shoreditch Trust

SHOREDITCH Trust's Food For Life Programme works with members of the community to encourage affordable healthy eating, cooking skills and food knowledge.
There are many different varieties of sweet potato and they have different qualities when cooked. For this recipe you will need sweet potatoes with orange flesh, which have a soft texture when cooked.
Orange sweet potatoes release their energy slower than white potatoes and are a good source of dietary fibre. This means they will keep you feeling fuller for longer than other more starchy potatoes. They are also a good source of carotenes, and vitamins C and B6.

Sweet potato falafel

Makes approx 20 falafel

Preparation time
25 mins

Cooking time
15-20 mins

Ingredients

- 300g orange sweet potato
- 1 small onion (finely chopped)
- 2 tsp ground cumin
- 2 cloves garlic (finely chopped)
- 2 tsp ground coriander
- ½ tsp black pepper
- 1 bunch parsley leaves (chopped)
- 2 tbsp lemon juice
- 2 tins chickpeas (rinsed, drained)
- 2-4 tbsp flour to thicken the mix
- Olive oil.

For the sesame coating:

- 4 tbsp toasted sesame seeds
- Pinch black pepper

Method

- Preheat the oven to 220C/200C fan/gas 7
- Peel sweet potato and chop into roughly 2cm chunks. Boil in water for 10mins. Remove and strain while still firm, it should still be a little bit difficult to poke with a knife
- Meanwhile, blend or mash the chickpeas into a rough paste with the chopped garlic. Combine with the sweet potato, onion, cumin, black pepper, garlic, parsley, ground coriander and lemon juice and mix well. You should be able to roll the mixture into patties. If it is too sticky, stir in some wholemeal or flour
- Mix the black pepper and sesame seeds and tip onto a plate
- Roll the falafel mixture into small patties and coat with the sesame seeds
- Place on a lightly oiled baking tray and bake for 15-20 minutes until golden brown
- Serve and enjoy.

Have your say on home proposals for regeneration programme

COMMUNITIES across Hackney have been helping shape the design of some of the thousands of new homes – being built as part of the Council's regeneration programme – through a series of interactive engagement events.

More than 100 people attended two recent events about proposals for 170 new homes at Marian Court in Homerton. This included testing out ideas for new play equipment and community spaces.

The designs replace previous plans and increase the number of Council homes on the site, with over half now being for social rent and low-cost homeownership.

The scheme is part of the Council's 3,000 home estate regeneration programme.

In Clapton, residents have been working with architects to shape plans for new homes in Pedro Street, on the site of the old boiler house at Gilpin Square; and in Mandeville Street, replacing unused garages with homes for local people.

These will be the first new homes to be delivered through the Council's housing supply programme: an initiative to build close to 400 homes on under-used Council land such as garages, car parks and depots, about 70 per cent of which will be for social rent and shared ownership.

To view the information boards from these events, and find out how to have your say, visit: www.hackney.gov.uk/marian-court; or: www.hackney.gov.uk/regeneration for Pedro Street and Mandeville Street.

Residents have been giving feedback on the Council's proposals for new homes in Marian Court and in Pedro Street (inset)
